My favourite Sabbath album is Heaven and Hell in no small part due to Ronnie James Dio's impassioned vocals which are light years above Ozzy. This may be sacrilege to 50-something Sabbath fans but it's a cold fact. Ozzy's a great front man by all accounts but not in RJD's league as a singer.

I think the characteristics that represent to black sabbath are their slow music with very dark atmosphere. Hence, Heaven & Hell is not so representative of black sabbath as masters of reality or sabotage, but this album is one most representative works of the heavy metal.

With Heaven and Hell, Black Sabbath were obviously back in business. Unfortunately, the Dio-led version of the band would only record one more studio album before splitting up (although Dio would return briefly in the early '90s). One of Sabbath's finest records.
