In early modern England, religious sorrow was seen as a form of spiritual dialogue between the soul and God, expressing how divine grace operates at the level of human emotion. Through close readings of both Protestant and Catholic poetry, Kuchar explains how the discourses of ‘devout melancholy’ helped generate some of the most engaging religious verse of the period. From Robert Southwell to John Milton, from Aemilia Lanier to John Donne, the language of ‘holy mourning’ informed how poets represented the most intimate and enigmatic aspects of faith as lived experience. In turn, ‘holy mourning’ served as a way of registering some of the most pressing theological issues of the day. By tracing poetic representations of religious sorrow from Crashaw’s devotional verse to Shakespeare’s weeping kings, Kuchar expands our understanding of the interconnections between poetry, theology and emotion in post-Reformation England.

But thoughts of the gentleman’s touch are driving her to distraction. . . With his weakness for sugar, the Marquess of Hatbrook can imagine no more desirable woman than one scented with cake and spice. Mistaking Alys for a mere waitress, he has no doubt she would make a most delicious mistress. And when he finds himself in need of an heir, he plans to make her his convenient bride. Yet as they satisfy their craving for one another, business and pleasure suddenly collide. Will Hatbrook’s passion for sweets—and for Alys—be his heart’s undoing? 85,000 Words
